

NATIONAL MASCULINITY WEEK

CAMPUS PROGRAMMING GUIDE

THOUSANDS OF YEARS OF HISTORY HAVE DEFINED MASCULINITY.

CAMPUSPEAK is launching National Masculinity Week (NMW) with the intent of changing the narrative nationally.

The goal of National Masculinity Week is to change the national conversation to focus on what it means to be a positive male role model and challenge the unhealthy and harmful aspects of traditional manhood and the mantras that “boys will be boys” or “men will be men.”

NATIONAL MASCULINITY WEEK WILL BE HELD OCTOBER 20-26, 2019.

National Masculinity Week is an investment in the future. NMW will create an opportunity for men to explore healthier norms of masculinity by providing a means of deconstructing traditional definitions of masculinity and exploring how they manifest in society and men’s lives. Throughout the week CAMPUSPEAK will provide resources to advance the conversation and support university communities, athletic programs, fraternal organizations and men engaging in these critical conversations.

WHEN IS NATIONAL MASCULINITY WEEK?

National Masculinity Week (NMW) is observed the last full week of October, however you can choose any week of the year that will work best for your community. What is most important is that your community identifies a week each year that they come together to change the conversation of what it means to be a man and to explore healthier norms of masculinity.
